SCORECARDS

How To Play

Each player draws seven cards, players have the option of discarding and selecting up to three new cards before the game. Discards are placed back into the deck.

The game begins when the broadcast begins.

When a card event happens, the player must alertly play their card. You snooze, you lose.

At the end of each quarter, every player has the option of discarding and selecting new cards:

End of first quarter: Up to three new cards

End of second quarter: Up to five new cards

End of third quarter: Up to seven new cards

End of fourth quarter: Up to seven new cards

Overtime: Up to seven new cards

At the end of the game all players add up the cards in their score pile. The player with the most points wins. But remember, points can still be accumulated after the final gun.

Dispute? If a judgment call needs to be made, the group has final say. Majority rules.

Trading of cards is allowed at any time. Anything goes as long as both parties agree.

Multiple cards (from a single player or multiple players) can be played at the same time. One football play on TV can result in many cards being played.
